

FACE TIME

A look at movers and shakers of the Metroplex – and what makes them tick.

David J. Lanners

Lanners, 55, is President & CEO of Dallas-based LCS International, Inc. which provides executive consulting and project management seminars.

- Aspirations: To become a member of the Horatio Alger Association of Distinguished Americans.
- Best business decision: Creating an executive consulting firm focused on improving inventory, quality, and project management practices.
- Career highlight: Rescuing the last American-owned manufacturer of heavy-lifting cranes a few years ago.
- Career inspiration: Observing the great George Burns look forward to working on his 100th birthday.
- Community Involvement: I served five terms as elected president of the Dallas Woodbridge Home Owners Association and currently serve on the Industry Advisory Council for SMU's School of Engineering.
- Education: I have a B.S.B. degree from the University of Minnesota and an M.B.A. degree from Harvard.
- Dream car: A Fiji blue Ferrari Enzo.
- Family: My wife, Donna Marie, and I recently celebrated our 34th wedding anniversary. Our son, Joseph, 32 and our daughter-in-law, Christine, have blessed us with a granddaughter, Natalie, 3, and another on the way.
- Favorite restaurant: Truluck's Steak and Stone Crab in Addison.

Dallas Business Journal

(Published in June 10-16, 2004 Edition)

- Favorite Web site: www.ebay.com
- First choice for a new career: I'd be a Texas Ranger or FBI agent because law enforcement is honorable work.
- First job: When I was 12, I worked in the soybean fields pulling weeds and learned that working four rows at a time paid more than working two.
- Future goals: To author a book that tops the Wall Street Journal's best selling list in nonfiction and business.
- Greatest Challenge: Creating ways for others to develop the skills needed to stay employed in a global economy.
- Hometown/childhood: I grew up on a farm in southern Minnesota and then attended high school in Hopkins, MN.
- Hobbies: Indoor target shooting for immediate feedback and tree training as a creative way to learn patience.
- Leadership style: I model desired behaviors to encourage others to do their best in challenging situations.
- Most influential book: "The Origin of Consciousness in the Breakdown of the Bicameral Mind" by Julian Jaynes.
- Most respected competitor: In my profession it's McKinsey & Company.
- Motto: Excellence is a shortcut to joy.
- Pet peeve: Cynical pessimists.
- Philosophy: What we give to others is returned to us multiplied.
- Role models: My father, Ed, a printer, taught me the value of self-discipline, and my mother, Phyllis, a baker, taught me compassion. They modeled love.
- Top three passions: Speaking to public audiences, spirited dialogue, and listening to good music.
- Word that best describes you: I am confident that one word is "coach".
- Worst business decision: I set up a consulting practice in Austin, Texas, in 1985, before doing enough research.
